“ It's a beautiful morning Dad and I now know you're going to be alright. It's taking me time to realize that you are in a better place and the the Lord doesn't make any mistakes.

My heart still bleeds and my soul is weak but I'm trying my best to face the test. I know you love me and I know you care so please help me to move on without all this despair. I feel so helpless and sometimes blue because I don't know what to do without you to see me through.

I'm so sorry that I wasn't there, when God decided to take you away from here. I feel so responsible for your death and trying my best so that I can rest.

Please forgive me for my absence. For I know you fought a good fight. But God wanted you home so you said your goodbyes and then your hellos and that is when I knew it was time to let you go.

It was not easy and it was not fair but when I prayed to God it became clear.

I love you and Miss you so very much.

Your Daughter, Rachel M. Fuller

“ Memories of you, shall forever be etched in my "HEART"! You are absent from this "EARTH"... .But I am certain that you are present with the LORD! I know that WE will meet again!

I will "LOVE YOU" always!!!
