

Elizabeth J. Auguste

May 14, 1955 - October 15, 2024

Elizabeth Jones Auguste was born on May 14, 1955, in Turbeville, South Carolina, to Roosevelt Capers and Rev. Rewdes Mary Hodge. Raised in Sumter, South Carolina, she was deeply influenced by her grandmother, Maggie Wright, from whom she learned the art of cooking. Later, she moved to Florida, where she made a notable impact in the healthcare industry, including her role as a manager at the Salvation Army in Orlando. Elizabeth was known for her dedication to service and community, always embodying a sense of professionalism and grace, with a keen attention to style. She also had extensive experience in the restaurant industry, where she held several management positions. Throughout her career, Elizabeth was admired for her leadership, commitment to excellence, and her ability to inspire those around her. Her commitment to family was unwavering; she often prioritized their needs above her own, offering support, prayer and encouragement even during her own challenges. Inspired by her mother, Reverend Mary Hodge, Elizabeth's passion for ministry blossomed early. After her mother's passing in 1998, she worked alongside her sister in various church roles. Throughout her service, Elizabeth held several key positions, including

A devoted member, Elizabeth remained active even after the church relocation from North Florida to Orlando, continuing her service on the board until her sister illness.
