“ Jimmie was married to my cousin, Rose. They were always together, lovingly, with their extended family of K-9s—who Jimmie and Rose treated more like their children than their pets. I remember the good ole days when Jimmie was still into fixing TVs, radios and other electronic items. At times we worked together. We were pretty good at it but, most importantly, we had so much fun doing it.

Jimmie was an 'ole soldier' who was extremely proud of his military service in defense to our Nation. As a fellow Army man, we also enjoyed chatting with each other about our respective Army experiences. He was so proud of me, and especially that I got to do what was so much harder to do during his Army days—to serve on active duty as a commissioned officer in the United States Army. His pride in my accomplishments made me even prouder of being able to do and to be things that his generation made possible for mine and beyond.

We were always guaranteed some hilarious and gut-busting laughs whenever Jimmie's sense of humor and joke-telling gears kicked in.

Most of all, though, we will miss the interaction between Jimmie and Rose; I can see and hear him now asking, as he did so often, "Rose Mary, where in the Hell is my such and such at?" She took wonderful care of Jimmie and demanded that he receive the absolutely best and most appropriate health care right up 'til the end. Losing Jimmie is like Rose has lost an essential part of herself.

We pray that God will keep our cousin strong and enable Rose Mary to quickly learn to cope and carry on alone without her beloved Jimmie. This is especially true as the loss of Jimmie now also forces her to find new homes for some of their beloved K-9 children.

Meanwhile, Jimmie, rest in peace knowing that you were a good man in every respect and that God will take care of and make a way for the wonderful family you've had to temporarily leave behind. We love you, Jimmie!
