“ Oh Miss Khloe. This year makes 7 years. Your perfect little face remains frozen in time, but that fierce little spirit of yours is still very much alive in the hearts of those that love you. What a gift you were to your family. I'm sorry that I never had a chance to meet you. I'm sure it seems strange that a person who never met you would feel grief for you, but through your parents I feel like I did know you. Your sweet smile and your sassy little side eye. I believe that you are able to feel the love of those you've left behind. I believe you know just how much you're missed. I believe that your family will be reunited again and spend an eternity together. Rest easy, sweet girl. And don't worry about your family. Broken hearts keep beating. They hurt, but they're strong. God is with them. With love, a would have been auntie, Holly.
