

Theresa Marie Delfosse-Phillips

June 21, 1973 - November 4, 2020

Theresa spent years working in the tourism and social service industries. However, her greatest achievement was being a loving wife, mother, sister, daughter, aunt, cousin and friend. Theresa knew that life was not measured by individual accomplishments but through loving and supporting those closest to her. As such, Theresa invested her time and energy into ensuring that all those around her, especially her children, would become the best versions of themselves. Throughout the years, Theresa became increasingly passionate about politics and community involvement. Even as the entire country awaited the results of perhaps the most polarizing election in our history, Theresa spent her final moments hopeful that the world she was leaving behind would be a better and more just place. In his eulogy to Malcolm X, Ozzie Davis said, "Consigning these mortal remains to earth, the common mother of all, secure in the knowledge that what we place in the ground is no more now a man – but a seed– which, after the winter of our discontent, will come forth again to meet us". Theresa was called home before the climatic crescendo of the country's election cycle, but like Malcolm and all those who have gone before, we are certain that she is looking down with relief and joy, awaiting the moment that we shall all meet again. Theresa was married to Charlie Phillips for 20 years. They met in Orlando, Florida but Theresa previously resided in both New York and Texas before choosing Kissimmee, Florida as her home.

Theresa leaves to cherish her memory...her husband, Charlie Phillips; parents, Ricardo and Marjorie Delfosse; daughter, Zoe Phillips; sons, Richardo Delfosse and Charles Phillips; daughter-in-law, Alaysha Delfosse; siblings, Nancy McDonald and Roger Delfosse; niece, Emeline Delfosse; nephews: Elijah Allen and Jeremy Delfosse; and a host of cousins, extended relatives and friends.
